Perils of the Sapper: Life in the Royal Engineers

Many history books touch on the exploits of Colonel Moody and his Royal Engineers. These 157 men are remembered for founding New Westminster, for surveying towns and building churches, and for creating the magnificent Cariboo Wagon Road.

But over the past century and a half, much has been forgotten. What was life really like for these soldiers, for their wives and children? It's the small, gritty details which fascinate the members of the Royal Engineers Living History Group.

Come and meet Tim Watkins in person and listen to his amazing tales! Friends and family welcome!
