

About Painted Shirt Native Arts & Crafts

Painted Shirt Native Arts & Crafts is a home based business. First Nations owned and operated, we provide a unique service to the community. We provide arts and crafts lessons as well as sell arts and crafts locally and internationally via our web site and extensive contacts locally and abroad.

We offer retail and wholesale creative arts and crafts in our local markets, craft shops, pow wows and trade shows.

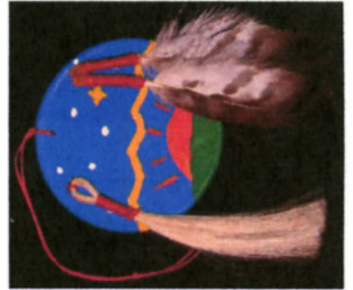

Aaron Lee, a certified Native Artisan and Cultural Arts Instructor provides teachings to schools, Native organizations and groups.

Through our arts and craft sessions our clients were able to access numerous resources of craft sessions, an experienced instructor to teach these classes and access to our suppliers that provide the supplies and materials for our sessions and the ability to call back Aaron Lee to effectively teach these classes.

As part of being able to teach native arts and crafts, we want to provide a positive influence and develop an interest in youth to learn their culture..

About Aaron Lee

Aaron J. Lee graduated from Portage collage in Lac La Biche, Alberta from the Native Artisans in 1998-99 and the Native Cultural Arts program in 1999-00.

He has been an artisan for over 16 years selling native arts and crafts at local art shows, pow wows, conferences, various craft shows and museum shops too numerous to list

As a child Aaron was introduced into the powwow circle as his family was very active in powwows. He danced traditional for many years and this has taught Aaron the importance of keeping our peoples traditions alive.

"When I work on my crafts I always keep a good state in mind as it is my belief that what energies we hold when we work is instilled in our work." - Aaron Lee

Over the past years while working at Ben Calif Robe School, Aaron took on the challenge of constructing regalia and has been asked on several occasions to make boy's and men's outfits.

He knows what it takes to make beautiful regalia and dance pieces. His work is excellent and becomes well known as word of mouth spreads of his products and services.
