Dr. Kermitt Walrond (5th) Retires

As AZDP Vice President of Production and Transportation
BP/AMOCO

Tribute by David Woodward President of BP/Amoco

Kermitt Walrond, VP of Production and Transportation, elected to retire at the time that the new organization was designed and agreed to remain here until we could be confident that the integrated production and transportation operations were functioning effectively and until we could identify a suitable replacement to build on the solid base he has established.

Since his arrival in Azerbaijan in February last year, Kermitt has shown great energy in developing the Chirag production operations and the subsequent integration of terminal and pipeline operations into his group. His unwavering focus on individual accountability and safety has had a significant impact on our business, as has his eagerness to contribute to management team processes.

After 37 years in the oil business, the last 27 of which have been with BP Amoco, Kermitt and his wife Yvette look forward to spending their time with their families and friends both in Trinidad and in their adopted homeland of the United States. They now reside in Houston, Texas.
